Project guidelines

1. You will select a sustainable development goal of your choice and present it to the class;
2. Your final project can be presented in any format. It will be assessed in terms of an oral component, as well as a one page summary of how you felt about doing this research and some of your most salient conclusions (things that will stay with you from what you have learned)
3. You must include in your project reference to people in the community you have contacted and how they helped you with your research - this could be an interview you conducted, someone you emailed to ask for information, etc. You do not need to produce the interview for your presentation.
4. Presentation dates:
5/25 and 5/27
5. You must include in your findings how your research work impacts either one of the following topics we have discussed in length in class this year -
 - How it relates to the issue of feminism and social justice
 - How it relates to making the world a more inclusive place;
 - How it emphasises the diversity of our world/country, school, etc
 - How it highlights the importance of healthy ecosystems and the environment
